

From: DKleindorf@aol.com@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 1/24/02 2:20pm
Subject: Microsoft Settlement

I believe AOL's latest lawsuit is an attempt to overturn Microsofts Settlement and also to go after Microsoft because they are a cash rich company. AOL's position about being pushed out of the Browser market is absurd they must believe that the average computer user is stupid if just because and icon is on the Desktop they won't be able to find and alternative browser I have used both browsers over the years with my first being Netscape but after switching back and forth several times I came to the conclusion Microsoft Explorer was a better product, not because it was merged somewhat with Windows but many things including ease of use and Appearance! AOL's own software inter mingles with Windows when it installs also and changes basic Windows settings, I know because I subscribe to their service and have for several years and they have been very uncompetetive with there instant messaging service Also! They could still be competetive in the browser market if they would have applied the resources to produce a better product instead of giving it to Lawyers!
But as with children or those that can't do they want to blame someone else !

Dennis Kleindorfer
601 East New York Ave.
DeLand,FL 32724
dkleindorf@aol.com